LOYOLA COLLEGE APPOINTS NEW DIRECTOR OF WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

The Department of Physical Education and Athletics announced today the appointment of Mrs. Patricia Boland as Director of Women's Athletics. Pat is a former member of the women's national basketball team which represented Canada in the 1967 Pan-Am Games at Winnipeg. Mrs. Boland is replacing Mrs. Brenda Maunder, who had held the position since its inception two years ago. Mrs. Maunder resigned recently to move to Newfoundland where her husband's firm transferred him.

A native of Winnipeg, Mrs. Boland is a graduate of the University of Manitoba, where she received her B.A. degree in 1963, and a Certificate of Physical Education in 1964. She was chosen Female Athlete of the Year in her final year at Manitoba.

Following graduation, Mrs. Boland was a physical education and health teacher at John Taylor Collegiate in Winnipeg for one year. From 1966 to 1968 she taught physical education and English at Glenlawn Collegiate in Winnipeg.

Prior to her appointment at Loyola, Mrs. Boland was a teacher of physical education and department head at St. Joseph's College School in Toronto.

In her new position, Mrs. Boland will serve as an assistant to the Director of Physical Education and Athletics, Professor Ed Enos, and will be in charge of all club, intramural, and intercollegiate women's athletics at Loyola.
